2nd read together

Second read- both the teacher and child read together some of the new words (particularly those repeated throughout the story) should now be familiar and this read should be less choppy and broken.

Right.

Hold a sentence 1

Rehearsing a sentence before writing helps a child remember what they want to write. Early writers are bogged down with spelling as they write. This rehearsal (the sillier the better) helps recall as they go back over what is written so far and needs to come next.

Click on picture for today's lesson.

Hold a sentence

Check your sentence here.

Watch me model writing the sentence. Now you write the sentence.

Hold a Sentence 1-Reveal

Checking/ Marking your own work reinforces what has been taught, trains the brain to store those common words with difficult spelling patterns (red words- words you can't sound out just need to know how to spell –e.g. the, was, said) and build up a spelling vocabulary.
